TODAY'S PROGRAM

Trudy Lacy, General Manager of The Charlotte Sting. What did you want to know about professional girls' basketball? If you don't know now, you lost your golden opportunity to find out!

The Charlotte Sting is owned by and operated as a subsidiary of the Charlotte Bobcats. Trudy, as General Manager, reports to the Bobcats' president - a position, as you know, which is now looking for a new occupant. Anybody looking for a new job?

Trudy says she lives and manages by her twin philosophies: "Lead by Spirit; Guide by Heart," and "Find Your Light." Not bad lessons for any of us, eh?

She says of Sting Coach Mugsy Bogues: now that he has figured out the difference between playing and coaching, The Sting could well become a major factor in the WNBA. We're with you, Trudy and Mugsy! GOOD LUCK!

DIDJAKNOW?

The annual convention of Kiwanis International begins in less than two weeks - June 23, to be exact. The 2006 convention was supposed to be in Rome, Italy. But when all the numbers came together, Kiwanis had to take a hard look and conclude that we simply couldn't afford it. So the site was changed to Montreal. Your missile launcher has been to two Montreal conventions and thoroughly enjoyed both. Montreal is a most friendly and interesting city. Yes, the official language is French; but any English-only speaking person won't have any trouble, either. President Matt and President-Elect Mark will be representing our Club there and we know they'll come back talking about the wonderful experience it was, and the opportunities they found to expose our project to the world.

Have PHUN, Matt and Mark!

DR. MARK IS RUNNIN' WILD!

Mark filled us in on recent developments concerning this exciting project. It seems that it is now contemplated to be about a 7-story building of about 145,000 square feet, stretching the entire block along Hawthorne Lane between Elizabeth Avenue and 5th Street.

He has been the architects he wants the o u t w a r d he describes we can only only Kiwanis will be proud, something of the whole proud!

told to work with and tell them how functionality and appearance. As his visions to us, conclude that not and Presbyterian but it will be which eventually world will be

As I've been heard to say so many times, if this isn't a KIWANIS project right up the alley of "Serving the Children of the World" and "Young Children: Priority One" I sure don't know what ever could be!

NEXT MEETING

Monday, June 19. We anticipate hearing from Wayne Westin, Charlotte-Mecklenburg Director of Parks and Recreation.

We're all for more recreation, aren't we? Come and learn more about how to get some and Govco's plans to provide facilities and opportunities for us

We have just learned about an organization called Ex-Husbands Anonymous: Whenever a divorced man feels the need to remarry, they send over a woman in housecoat and curlers.
